THE WEEK IN CONGRESS

The Next Important Debate on the New Tariff Bill.

THE WOOL AND WOOLEN SCHEDULE

It Is Expected That This Will be Reached Before the End of the Week, and That It Will Precipitate Three or Four Days' Discussion.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—It is expected on both sides of the senate chamber that the woolen schedule will be reached during the present week in the consideration of the tariff bill There is a tacit agreement among the Republican and Democratic leaders that the debate shall be continued under the five minute rule on the wine, cotton manufactures and flax schedule Senator Aldrich, as the representative of the Republican side of the chamber, expressed the opinion that these schedules would be disposed of with very little delay He said that the understanding for five minute speeches would not be continued when the woolen schedule should be reached, and he expressed the opinion that three or four days debate would be necessary before the wool and woolen schedule is acted on Some of the Democratic leaders think the schedule may be disposed of in two days

This schedule will develop one of the most important debates connected with the bill Next to the duty on sugar, free wool has attracted more attention than any other item in the bill, and there can be no doubt that many Republican senators will make speeches vigorously assailing the Democratic position

The Democrats while not expecting or hoping to secure consideration of this schedule under the five minute rule, are nevertheless hopeful that they can make an arrangement for the fixing of a definite number of days for the debate. It is understood this is one end they have in view in arranging the preliminaries for night sessions, as they have been doing in securing pledges of Democratic senators to remain until the steering committee shall consent to an adjournment each day.

This is to be an elastic arrangement, and late night sessions will be resorted to only in case of evident determination on the part of Republican senators to delay a vote This is not expected on any of the items which precede the woolen schedule, nor do many senators think it will be undertaken in that connection. The Democratic leaders, however, regard it as best to be prepared to meet the emergency if it should present itself They desire also, if it should prove that there are to be an unsuspected number of long speeches on the woolen schedule, to work them off as rapidly as possible by resort to night sessions for that purpose

"We do not," said Senator Harris, "want to impose any unnecessary hardships, but we want to make an impression on the bill during the week"

The Indian question in its various ramifications on schools agents rations and supply depots will continue to occupy the attention of the house the early days of the week Judge Holman, in charge of the bill, said today that he expected to pass the bill by tomorrow or Wednesday

After that there are a number of important bills struggling for priority. The general deficiency bill will be reported to the house tomorrow, and Chairman Sayers, of the appropriation committee, will urge its immediate consideration, in order to clear the calendar of appropriation bills. Mr Sayers will be in charge of the deficiency bill notwithstanding the fact that Representative Breckinridge, of Kentucky is chairman of the deficiency subcommittee

It is expected that Mr Hatch will try to have the anti-option bill follow the Indian bill. Representative Cooper, of Indiana, also expects to have a day set apart soon for his bill authorizing the taxation of greenbacks Representative Livingston, of Georgia, is pressing the bill for government aid to the cotton exposition at Atlanta Chairman Culberson, of the judiciary committee also wants early recognition for several important bills affecting federal court procedure, and the territorial statehood bills are being vigorously pressed to the front

CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY

The Orders of Colorado's Governor Ignored by Sheriff Bowers

DENVER, June 11—Governor Waite, in response to a telegram from General Brooks, commanding the militia in Cripple Creek, informing him that the deputies were advancing on Bull Hill, ordered the following telegram sent to General Brooks

"If, as you say, Sheriff Bowers admits that the deputies refuse to obey his orders, and, acting in defiance thereof they are not a lawful body are only armed marauders, and you must treat them as such. Order them to put down their arms and disperse. If they refuse to do so, and you have not force enough to suppress this new insurrection notify me and I will call out enough organized militia to enforce the order"

Commissioner Boynton in command of the deputies, was shown the order and immediately wired his attorney, Hon C S. Thomas, of this city for advice Mr Thomas, sent the following reply

"The sheriff of the county engaged in enforcing order, subduing or attempting to subdue armed resistance to the law or the authorities, or in overcoming those who defy the service of process is discharging the obligations of his office and maintaining civil government In doing this he may call to his aid and deputize as many citizens as may be necessary, and no power, not even the federal government, has lawful authority to interfere with or disarm him"

Boynton denies that Sheriff Bowers has lost control of his men or that they are a disorderly body.

THE STRIKE IN WEST VIRGINIA.

All the Troops in the State Will be Called Out if Necessary

CHARLESTON, W Va June 11.—Governor McCorkle is evidently perplexed at the condition of affairs at Boggs Run A telegram received at 11 o'clock yesterday stated that a coal train had just been brought past the strikers without any trouble, and a dispatch received a short while after contained the information that a train had just been stopped by strikers a short distance below Moundsville and that two companies of military would be sent at once to disperse the mob The character of all the information that the governor had received up to the reception of this last telegram indicated that the trouble had practically ended and he hoped to be able to withdraw the military probably within a very short time

This last outbreak however only confirms his original view that the trouble is too deep seated to be settled by the show of force on the scene He said to an Associated Press representative today that he had eleven companies at Boggs Run and that the entire military force of the state will be used if necessary in moving coal into Ohio and Pennsylvania Since Adjutant General Hoiley has gone to Boggs Run his office is closed and Governor McCorkle communicates with the troops from his residence He now has a wire direct to Boggs Run

FIRED ON THE MILITARY

Ohio Troops Disperse a Mob at the Point of the Bayonet

WHEELING CREEK, O June 11—Signal flags were used Saturday to notify miners whenever coal trains started from Bridgeport A signal station surrounded by 50 men and women was charged upon and torn down by troops The miners made a demonstration as if to throw stones, but were warned that the soldiers would fire if stones were used Returning from the attack on the signal station to the railroad bridge a striker planted himself squarely in the way of the troops An officer knocked him out of the way Fully 200 men and women gathered at the bridge, heaping abuse on the soldiers, and rushed on to the tracks and defied the troops The order to charge was given, and the mob dispersed at the point of the bayonet

The militia were fired on by some persons in the hills at frequent intervals Saturday night from midnight till morning, and in a few cases the sentinels returned the fire, but so far as known no bloodshed resulted Yesterday strikers burned 144 feet of a wooden bridge at Goshen, west of Wheeling creek No coal could therefore be moved until the bridge was repaired

Strikers Burn a Bridge.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O, June 11.—Miners burned over a hundred feet of trestle on the Cleveland, Loraine and Wheeling railway at Goshen, three miles south of here They threatened to kill two bridge guards who ran here and alarmed the operator Bridgemen called from Uhrichsville are repairing the trestle About a hundred men are working. Sheriff Adams was appealed to guard bridges at Midvale, Strassburg and Dover. Nearly all the bridges are wood, and four deputy sheriffs guarded each last night. Two regiments of state troops will be distributed along the road.

The Situation in Illinois.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 11.—Governor Altgeld received a telegram from Colonel Bailey, from Pana, saying that the First regiment had arrived there. Everything was quiet, and no trouble was at hand, the miners being overawed by the presence of so many troops General Orendorff took an engine and coach from here and went to Pana to ascertain the exact situation of affairs The Associated Press representative has just seen the governor, who says there is nothing new and no more troops have been ordered out. The governor thinks the trouble at Pana will amount to nothing

COKERS FIGHT AGAIN.

Another Deadly Battle Between Strikers and Deputies.

ONE KILLED, TWO FATALLY HURT.

The Fatalities Were Confined to the Strikers, Who Started the Fight—It Is Believed That Four "Scabs" Captured by the Strikers Have Been Killed.

UNIONTOWN, Pa, June 11—The truce is ended, and again the armed deputies in the coke regions have made a killing One striker killed in his boots, two others dying and another shot through is the result of a battle yesterday at Lemont There were six deputies on one side and a mob of strikers on the other Unbiased testimony is to the effect that the mob not only provoked, but compelled the deputies to fire on them, after the strikers had compelled them to retreat, and had fired several shots at them

The circumstances that led up to this latest of the many tragedies of the coke region were developing since Saturday afternoon Four American workmen John Delaney, Oliver Attleby John Britt and James Furlough who live at Leisenring have been working at the Frick Coke company's Valley works for some time. They came to New Haven Saturday afternoon, where they were to take the Leisenring electric road for home where they have not been for a month

As soon as they alighted from the train at New Haven they were surrounded by a mob of several hundred strikers The strikers first beat the four workmen and then put tags on them bearing the inscription "blacklegs" also covering them with chalk marks They then marched their prisoners to all the works on the line from New Haven south holding them up as decorated samples of "scabs" for the revilings and abuse of strikers everywhere The four prisoners were subjected to all manner of insults and indignities to such an extent that many of the more rational strikers protested that it was cruel and cowardly for so many men to assail four helpless fellows in that way

When one crowd had tired of the prisoners or were pressed closely by the pursuit the four prisoners were handed over to another crowd and the former gathering would disperse to their homes The prisoners were especially ill treated when their captors marched them to their homes, where the women and children slapped and spat upon them and called them vile names The little children screamed "blacklegs" at them and struck them with their tiny fists

The Frick Coke company were informed of the perilous position their workmen were in. Field Deputy Matt Allen and six men were immediately sent to New Haven on the evening train. They were misled by false information It was daylight when the squad of tired deputies reached Lamont where the fight took place. They had been joined by Superintendent Slater, of the Leisenring plant, who had helped in the all night hunt

Not long after daylight the men began to assemble on the commons by the hundred. They engaged in the wildest demonstrations, and it is thought that they then had the four captives in their possession When the deputies were discovered the mob raised a howl and surrounded them Many of the strikers had revolvers, and all carried clubs. They moved against the deputies who retreated under a shower of clubs and stones. Riding up to the advancing crowd of miners Deputy Allen told them to go back, saying he did not want any trouble, and that there would be trouble if he or his men were attacked or injured The answer to Allen was a general yell, and one of the strikers covered him with his pistol and fired The shot was a close shave for the top of Allen's head

The deputies opened fire together, and the strikers stood to it and fought gamely The first shots were fired by them, and they fired as coolly and as rapidly as did the deputies, and they kept closing in on the men who were working the Winchesters until they were driven to the extreme end of the company's ground where they made a stand. By that time three of the strikers were down and several others were wounded. The strikers began at once to carry away their wounded The dead man and two who were fatally wounded were left in the road where they fell.

The number of wounded may not be known for several days, as they will be concealed where concealment is possible Allen estimates that fifty or sixty shots were fired by both sides. The two Slavs who were fatally shot can live but a short time. The names of the dead and wounded cannot be learned as yet Nobody but the strikers knew them, and they refuse to tell who the men were or give any information of any kind under any circumstances

Deputies armed with search warrants have been going through all the houses in the vicinity, but not a trace of the four men held as prisoners by the strikers has been seen, and it is feared that they have been murdered by the strikers in revenge for the loss of the men hurt in yesterday's battle. Twelve arrests have been made, and at least [illegible] follow

HELD UP BY ROBBERS.

Two Successful Masked Thieves at Fort Gibson, I. T.

AMOUNT OF THEIR HAUL UNKNOWN

But It Is Believed That They Secured a Small Fortune—An Amusing Hold Up at Noon by Unarmed Men, Within the City Limits of Philadelphia.

LITTLE ROCK. June 11—The railroad station and express office at Fort Gibson, I T, were held up and robbed by two masked men about 11 30 Saturday night. The exact amount of money secured by the robbers is not known, but it will probably aggregate a large amount, as it is thought the express packages stolen contained large sums, as a great deal of the cash paid to the Cherokees at Tahlequah has been shipped by express from Fort Gibson. It is known that $600 in cash was secured, $100 of which belonged to the Kansas and Arkansas Valley railroad

Two masked men entered the station, and at the point of Winchesters compelled H S Gibson, the railroad agent and express agent to unlock the safe, threatening to blow his head off if he did not obey their command After rifling the safe the robbers relieved the agent and night operator of their valuables, securing besides $600 in cash, all the valuable express packages in the office and several watches and other jewelry.

Peck Brunner, the most noted and daring deputy marshal in the territory was in the vicinity of Fort Gibson, and at once organized a posse and started on horseback in pursuit of the robbers

This is the second time the station at Fort Gibson has been robbed in six months. The men who perpetrated the former robbery are now in jail in Fort Smith awaiting trial. There is no clew to the perpetrators of Saturday night's robbery More trouble is expected before the payment is concluded

HELD UP A FREIGHT TRAIN.

Bold Act of Four Thieves Within the City Limits of Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA June 11—Four desperate thieves armed with no weapons save lumps of coal, held up a Reading railway freight train within the city limits at high noon yesterday They were repulsed after a desperate fight with the crew of the train attacked and that of another following it, aided by the police Two of the robbers were captured

The hold up occurred at the Cambria street crossing of the Reading road. The crew of the freight train, except the engineer and fireman, were sitting in the caboose during a temporary halt when the door opened and in stalked four burly desperadoes each of whom carried in his hands great chunks of anthracite coal. With threats of serious injury they compelled the frightened railroaders to stand in one corner under the guard of one of the thieves, while the others went forward to capture the engine Just then another freight train came up, the crew of which came to the assistance of the prisoners

The thieves retreated to a coal car in front of the caboose and kept their pursuers off by hurling lumps of anthracite at them until two policemen came up. Then they broke and ran, but the officers caught James Langman and Frank Griffin and locked them up The others got away Langman is an old offender

"ADAMANT" WALL PLASTER!

The New, Cheap Substitute for Common Plaster.

It is very hard and very adhesive; it does away with the warping and shrinkage of doors and casings, and the building is not saturated with water, as is necessarily must be when common plaster is used; it costs originally but little more than lime plaster, and in the end its superior qualities make it immeasurably cheaper; it saves waiting several weeks or months for the buildings to dry out; it does not crack or fall off, even in the case of leakage; it is applied easily by any good plasterer; it is the only material with which repairing can be done neatly and "to stay."

CONFIDENCE.

Our lifetime troth a paradise
To us shall be,
Made by the light of loving eyes
And fervency
Of heart kept love, full tenderly
Bespoke, ere it is spoken;
Made constant by pure thoughts, and sweet
As fragrance from the cinnamon
And myrrh; made even more replete
By confidence inspired and won
By ne'er a promise broken.
This is the talisman and token,
The fragrance of the cinnamon
And myrrh of love, kept ever sweet
By confidence inspired and won
By ne'er a promise broken.

WELL HELMETED.

With what impatience Gervasio awaited the coming Saturday! For on Saturday there was to be a ball at the Alhambra under the auspices of the Society El Mochuelo. It was to be a masquerade, and it would be his first time to appear in disguise. He had made the engagement with several friends, and besides intended to make a formal declaration of his love, long and silently cherished, to Pepita, a very clever girl, the daughter of a prominent merchant who lived in the Calle del Ave Maria. The occasion would be propitious because Pepita would attend the ball masked, and Gervasio knew exactly what her costume was going to be. He had already bargained with a friend to introduce him to her father in order that he might obtain permission to dance with the young girl, for whom he had already destined a fine box of sweets, bought for this express purpose at the shop of La Pajarita in the Puerta del Sol.

Gervasio was a good fellow. He had obtained a government position, a modest one, to be sure, but his income sufficed to cover all his expenses, and as he had no family and lived alone in a small apartment and had good relations he could call himself a happy man.

That ball aggravated him. He lived upon his illusion of appearing in the costume of a troubadour, which he had adjusted to his form, and as a climax to his good fortune Baron de las Rosas, who had many fine armors at his house, had promised him a helmet, an ancient breastplate and a sword.

How many nights the good Gervasio dreamed about that beautiful costume the compliments from his friends and the covetous glances of some pretty girls!

Surely Pepita would not be able to resist him and would at least on that night write a chapter on hope in the history of her love affairs

At last came the nights so long looked forward to. Gervasio arrived at the house of the baron when the latter returned from the theater at about 12:30 o'clock. He was already dressed for the ball and lacked nothing except the helmet and breastplate. Of course he did not wear a mask.

"Who would think of a mask," said he, "when one can pull down the visor? One can see and breathe much better, and, above all, the beard and neck will not show."

"But, my friend," said the baron while his valet was putting the helmet on Gervasio, "you are going to be very tired indeed. This weighs too much to be worn all night long."

"No, sir. It is all right."

"Very well, do as you wish."

And Gervasio was an armed knight. He returned to his cab and drove to the Alhambra

Gervasio entered the ballroom, carrying himself like a veritable troubadour.

What a martial and elegant aspect he imagined himself presenting! In his imagination he saw himself, as in a mirror, walking about among similar costumes, and red, blue and yellow dominos of percaline. He elbowed his way among the jesters, who gracefully donned the embroidered manilla manties, and passed haughtily by the girls disguised as babies or virgins whose costumes looked as if they were "homemade." He thought himself the object of the admiration of all and was himself dazzled by the reflection of helmet and breastplate in the rays of electric light He sought Pepita, and finally, after great trouble, succeeded in meeting her The friend who was to introduce him to the girl's father kept his word. They began a waltz, and the troubadour, offering his arm to Pepita, promenaded in the salon.

But there he soon found out that the baron had spoken as by the mouth of a prophet. He could scarcely hear what he was saying under his helmet. His voice sounded like a hollow echo. The heat was something unendurable. Shut in, as he was, with the visor tightly fastened, in an atmosphere impoverished by the heat and the presence of so many people, he could scarcely catch his breath

Pepita did not hear a word he said He wanted to make a final effort and began to waltz, but that, too, became impossible He saw nothing. The helmet jogging about on all sides bumped his cranium at every turn, and he narrowly escaped falling down in the middle of the room.

Finally he was forced to abandon Pepita and to discard his incognito It was necessary for him to get some air, to wipe off the perspiration which bathed his countenance and to see where he was going But he found no relief in spite of his lifting the visor, for he could neither pat on the handkerchief with his hand, nor did the weight he carried on his head cease paining him Then raging and desperate, having lost his fond illusions, without being able to propose to Pepita, and what was worse without any one having taken notice of him, he determined to return home, and like one contemplating suicide he left the theater, after having spent one hour there, exhausted in body as well as in spirit. Neither mind nor matter had been able to support a helmet of the tournament on the night of the ball

He arrived at his home, but speaking, as it were, into a large earthen dish and being unable to uncover his head the watchmen refused to let him in, and entreaties, arguments and signs were necessary to convince the dubious man that it was the real Mr Gervasio

When this first difficulty had been overcome, he went stumbling up the 70 steps which separated him from his room. He opened the door with great difficulty, and with yet more he succeeded in lighting a candle

Then the struggle began. He had never worn a helmet before, and in his haste to go to the ball had not been careful to find out how it should be taken off.

He walked to and fro, inclosed thus, tried everything that looked like a button, buckle or spring, but to no avail. The helmet seemed to cleave to him. Then it occurred to him to call in aid But whom? All the neighbors were sleeping, and it would have been the greatest intrusion to knock at one of the rooms.

He stopped near the door to consider. He thought he heard steps Some one was coming up stairs.

It was indeed Paco, the mason, an old neighbor of the house, not overindustrious, but a great night reveler. That night, doubtless, because it was Saturday, the measures of red wine had been passed around all too freely, and consequently the man seemed now and then to lose his balance.

"Paco," called Gervasio. And Paco suddenly halted, much frightened, upon hearing that cavernous voice and catching sight of a specter which he could not quite make out.

"It is I, Gervasio."

"I am afraid," said Paco.

"No, man, don't be frightened. Come, help me take this off, for I can't do it alone."

"Well, all right."

And, staggering, he entered the room after Gervasio. But as Paco understood just as little about armors, and, on the other hand, was not very steady, he did not improve the renewed efforts otherwise than by two or three little scratches which the mason inflicted on the troubadour's neck with the edges of the helmet.

"But how did you ever get yourself inside of this?"

"I did not get into it. This opens."

"It may open, but I do not see the trick of it. Now I'm sleepy. I'm going to bed now, and tomorrow I'll see if Mrs. Nicasia, the porter's wife, can't take this off of you, for she understands those things, since her husband was a watchmaker in Jetafe before it became a municipality."

Gervasio had to resign himself to his fate.

"I'll have to go to bed with this helmet, I suppose." And he stretched himself out on the bed. That, too, was a torture, as he turned and twisted. But for great evils there are great remedies He sat down in an armchair and sadly waited the dawn of day What a long night it was!

Since only the punishments in the infernal regions are eternal he slept at odd moments under the helmet Then again he thought of how costly were the glories of man and suffered still more from the trials of a pianist who lived in the third story, who never took any rest herself nor allowed her neighbors to rest. Finally he heard the door open and saw Mrs Nicasia enter with the breakfast

The good porter's wife nearly dropped the cup of chocolate at the strange sight But she had been informed of it all and began to try her luck

At about 1 o'clock the next morning, when the baron arose, his valet brought him a letter bearing the word "important."

"When was this letter brought?" the baron asked, opening the envelope.

"This morning at about 9."

"Very well."

And in that letter it said:

> Pardon my boldness but I beg of you to do me the favor of sending over your valet to take off the helmet, as I have not been able to do so I am almost mad. I passed the night in an armchair It is very necessary for me to go to my office I write under great difficulties and was hardly able to take my breakfast "Beso su mano," yours in despair, GERVASIO

"By Jove!" cried the baron, "what time is it?"

The valet looked at the clock on the small table "It is 11 30, sir"

"Then go quickly to Gervasio's house He needs you But hurry!"

At 12 o'clock sharp the troubadour was relieved of the helmet and was on the point of fainting for joy —Chicago News.

The Pillow Nuisance.

"I happened to be in Kansas City while a convention was on," said F S Nies, "and owing to the crowded condition of the hotels was compelled to double up with a stranger. He was a very pleasant man of German descent and did nothing erratic until he went to bed Then he removed the casters from the legs at the head of the bed, so as to make it lower than the foot, placed his pillows at the foot of the bed and went to sleep with his head at least 12 inches lower than his feet. He slept the sleep of the just and had to be called half a dozen times in the morning. We went down to breakfast together, and I ridiculed him for his peculiar sleeping posture. He quoted some German scientist with a five syllable name as his authority, and so convinced me of the fact that it is entirely a mistake to suppose that pillows and bolsters are necessary that I discarded both and found to my surprise that he was right. The discovery was a revelation to me, but it is certain that to some people at least a pillow is a nuisance instead of a comfort if they only knew the fact."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Milk Pans, and pails, and cans, and bottles (even baby's)—or anything that you want particularly clean, ought to be washed with Pearline.

You'll save work in doing it, and it's a great deal more thoroughly done. Dairies and dealers use Pearline extensively. Just try it once, on your milk-ware or butter-ware—and then say if it isn't the most satisfactory way of cleaning. Pearline is the most economical thing you can use, too. You get so much more out of it

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 395 JAMES PYLE, New York.

OUR NEXT PRESIDENT!

SOMEBODY will be the next President of the United States. The ARGUS and MERCURY gives to its readers the portrait and life story of the man who is GOING TO BE ELECTED

To the Presidency at the end of Mr. Cleveland's term. It would give his name here but for the circumstance that he is lost among 256 of the greatest men and women of America, and it is as yet impossible to distinguish him exactly. In "America's Greatest Men and Women," the remarkable work now obtainable through the ARGUS and MERCURY, appears certainly the portrait of the next President, because there appear in that work the portraits of all the leading men and women of the country, and among them most certainly is the chief executive to be chosen in 1896

"America's Greatest Men and Women."

AMERICA'S GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

AMERICA'S GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

Is assuredly the most valuable and most interesting publication of recent times The marvel is that such a work has not been produced before. It does not wait for death. It gives the portraits—and these portraits are 10x14 inches in size and are reproduced from recent photographs of all the people described—and gives a complete and graphic biography of each person. Think of the value such a work as this must be to anybody! Think of what an educator it must be for even the children who read it! Was there ever issued a book likely to be more attractive in all ways or more of an absolute necessity? It can be obtained in a manner which has already been described in the columns of this paper, but which may be here repeated.

You Can Get This Work Only Through the Daily Argus and Mercury.

HERE ARE the TERMS.

IN EVERY ISSUE OF THE ARGUS AND MERCURY will appear a numbered coupon Cut this coupon out and bring or forward it, together with TEN CENTS, to the Coupon Department of the ARGUS and MERCURY and there will be delivered or mailed to you one number of the series as above. The remaining parts can be obtained as issued, one each week, by the readers of the ARGUS and MERCURY under the same conditions.

WASHBURN'S GREAT SHOW.

Some of the Attractions of the Circus and Menagerie.

The Leon W. Washburn circus and menagerie is on its travels and will visit Middletown, Thursday, June 14. All the bill boards, dead walls and old barns and deserted houses are placarded with red and yellow posters, emblazoned with the figures of creatures from every clime, and all to be seen for the small sum of twenty-five cents. Children fifteen cents. Undoubtedly in public estimation the chief attraction of Mr. Washburn's menagerie lies in "Cupid," the little baby elephant, who is only three feet high, three months old and weighs two hundred pounds. Cupid is the most gentle and tiniest of elephants, and is never so pleased as when a crowd gathers around him, when he at once begins poking his trunk in all directions for dainties. The visitors give him cakes, candy, apples and fruit, at an average of two bushels a day, and he can digest anything but nails and quids of tobacco, of the latter of which he is very wary. As a staple food, he eats hay, potatoes and bran. He has a constant attendant and keeper in Don Melville, who has been with him since birth There is also a special groom for his quarters. Altogether he has a pretty good time. He is certainly a great feature, far ahead of any that has heretofore appeared in this city, and Mr. Washburn may well feel proud of so valuable an addition to his already extensive menagerie.

Sponge Fishing.

The Greeks are considered the principal sponge fishers, and it takes much experience, skill and hardihood to qualify a man for a first class place among sponge divers. Many of the most valuable specimens are found at a depth varying from 10 to 35 fathoms To aid in the descent, the divers make use of a triangular stone, with a hole in one corner through which a rope is spliced. On reaching the deep sea gardens, where the rock ledges are clothed with marine growths, the diver retaining a hold on his rope, dexterously breaks away the holdfast of the sponges and places them under his arm until a sufficient load has been gleaned, when a pull on the rope signals his companions above that he is ready to ascend and he is then hauled to the surface, bearing his ocean treasures —Exchange

Manuscript of "The School For Scandal."

No printed version of The School For Scandal' was prepared for publication by Sheridan He always alleged that he could not supply one with which he was perfectly satisfied Yet he made the attempt, and Mr Fraser Rae has discovered the copy containing his final corrections of passages in many scenes, which Moore must have overlooked, the documents at his disposal having recently been put into Mr Fraser Rae's hands by Sheridan's descendants for the purpose of writing a complete biography of the great dramatist and orator The manuscript is imperfect, yet enough is extant to show how effectually Sheridan could add a fresh charm to his polished phrases —London Athenæum

Rulers of Horses and Men.

It is instructive to compare the visage of the ruler of horses with that of the ruler of men The horseman's face shows command in the mouth, the drill sergeant's in the mouth and the eye The last is undoubtedly the most effective instrument in exacting obedience from our own species. Here we get a hint of the cause of that want of dignity, that element of coarseness, which is discernable in the countenances of some men and women who have much to do with horses The higher and nobler method of expressing authority is outweighed by the lower and more animal one.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Are Men Getting More Vain?

A local philosopher, who makes a practice of observing other people's manners and commenting upon their habits, states that nearly every man now carries a pocket mirror According to him, this habit has grown immensely of late, and nearly every man can be observed at frequent intervals pulling a glass out of his pocket and looking at the set of his necktie or the appearance of his whiskers.—Philadelphia Call.

THE PRESIDENT COMING TO MIDDLETOWN.

The Sick May Receive Medical Services Free of Charge.

The President and members of the European and American Staff of German, English, Irish, Scandinavian and American Doctors of New York city will be at the Russell House, Middletown, on one day only. The sick and afflicted may consult them without charge during their stay.

Tuesday, June 12th,

If you are incurable they will tell you; therefore invalids must not take offence if they are rejected, as no case will be accepted unless there is a moral certainty of a cure being effected. These Doctors are graduates of the best universities of Europe and America, they are of the highest standing in the medical profession and have had unlimited experience in the treatment of all Chronic Diseases and Deformities. As the latest methods, instruments and appliances of the various schools of both the Old and the New World are familiar to and at the command of this staff of doctors, it is reasonable to believe that in ninety cases out of every hundred a cure can be effected, even when the patients have been given up as incurable by doctors who have had less experience. Do not be discouraged because your doctor cannot give you relief, or even if he tells you that you cannot get well, for it matters not what your disease may be, you can consult the doctors free, and, if curable, they will treat you; if incurable, they will give you such advice as will tend to prolong life and afford you the greatest relief.

The doctor will visit Middletown one day each month Office hours from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1894.

It is understood in Washington that President Cleveland will do whatever he can to help along the Hudson River bridge by naming at the earliest possible moment the board of five engineers who will recommend what length of span, not less than 2,000 feet, is practicable. The prediction is confidently made that the bridge will be finished in five years.

"It is a matter of profound regret to the Democratic party," says the Philadelphia Record, "that it will not be able to carry out to the letter the tariff policy indicated in its platform and approved by the people; but in whatever shape the tariff bill shall finally reach the hands of the President it will certainly be a long step in the right direction. Political traders have been able to thwart the efforts for systematic and thorough reform, but they have not been able to prevent it entirely."

The Herald's European edition notes the success of experiments for the preservation of milk with oxygen, which have recently been made in France. The milk, taken fresh from the cows, was placed in a receptacle with compressed oxygen, and then stored under a pressure of two atmospheres in twenty four gallon cans. Thus treated milk was sent from Lyons to London without showing any signs of fermentation, nor were any traces of germs found in it. It is claimed that this oxygenated milk can be kept for months in perfect condition at quite high temperature. If the process is practicable for dairymen generally it will revolutionize the milk trade of this country, and place farmers far from the centres of consumption on an equality with them within a few hours' haul of the large cities. The results of further experiments will be watched with interest by the farmers of Orange and adjacent counties, who have a vital interest in not having the area of milk supply extended beyond its already too wide limits.

FIRE DEPARTMENT NOMINATIONS

All the Officers Renominated Practically Without Opposition.

The convention for the purpose of nominating officers for the Middletown Fire Department for the ensuing year met, Saturday evening, at Excelsior's truck house.

Mr. E. W. Wood, of Excelsiors, was elected chairman and Mr. K. W. Stash, of Monhagens, was chosen secretary. Messrs. Frank Callanan, of McQuoid Engine Co., and John Gavin, of Wallkills, were appointed tellers.

There was no opposition, excitement or discussion, all the present officers being renominated.

The informal ballot for chief resulted in 18 vote for E. Thorpe, and 3 for Chas. Higham. The ballot was made formal and unanimous.

For First Assistant Chas. Higham, received 16, D. Schmidt 2, on the informal ballot. This ballot was also made formal and unanimous.

Mr. D. Schmidt received all the votes for Second Assistant, and the Secretary was instructed to cast a ballot for Ira M. Corwin for Treasurer and H. T. Ostrander for Secretary. The convention then adjourned. The election will be held to-morrow evening, and as yet there is no talk of a "stump ticket" as far as can be learned.

THE DEATH OF MRS. CONROY

The Erie Censured for Not Protecting Knox's Crossing Until 11 O'clock.

Coroner Decker held an inquest Saturday, in the case of Mrs. Ann Conroy, who was killed, Friday evening, at Knox's crossing by the Erie milk train. The testimony of Engineers J. A. Wilkin and J. R. Duryea, Fireman P. H. Bogardus, and Gate tender John Callahan was taken and it showed that the woman's death was caused by her own carelessness.

The verdict censures the Erie for not protecting the crossing at which the accident happened until as late an hour as the other crossings in the city.

A BAD MAN FROM PORT JERVIS

Guiseppe Vallente, an Italian With a Record, Arrested for Doing Up William Libolt.

Guiseppe Vallente, a Port Jervis Italian, who was arrested in this city, March 5th, for threatening to kill Nicolo Minllo, a fellow countryman employed at the O. and W. coal pockets, and who was sent to Goshen jail, for ten days, got into trouble again, yesterday, at the Summit.

Minnie Adriance, a sister of Fred Maguire, lived with Vallente for a time in Port Jervis, and made way with some of his cash and valuables when she left him. He came to this city, yesterday, to see Minnie, whose theft he has forgiven. He found her with her latest husband by brevet, a man named Thompson. William Libolt, who claims to be the "original Jacobs" of Minnie's many husbands, was also there. Libolt tried to talk to Minnie, and when she moved away pulled her by the sleeve and tore it. This roused Vallente's ire, and he jumped on Libolt, knocked him down, and seizing a stone, beat him on the head with it till the crowd interfered.

News of the fracas reached the police and Officers Sharpe and Tyrrell arrested Vallente and locked him up. Libolt entered a complaint of assault in the third degree against him. He will have an examination at 4 o'clock.

While he was pounding Libolt, Minnie took from his pocket a murderous revolver of large calibre and a very ugly dirk, which are in the hands of the police.

—Manager Haight, of the Goshen team, has made arrangements to play ball on the Goshen Driving Park and has arranged a game with the Montgomerys for June 15th, and a game with the Brighton Athletic Club for about the middle of July. He has a strong team and we may expect some good games this season.

A LIVELY RUNAWAY.

A Truck Team's Dash Through Crowded Streets.

The handsome large team of black horses, belonging to liveryman J. H. Horton, became frightened at an O. and W. engine which was blowing off steam near the electric power house, on Low avenue, this morning. The driver had left the team for a moment and they started on a run. At breakneck speed they went through Smith street, turned into Wickham avenue and again into North street, through which thoroughfare they ran, until they were stopped by a young man, in front of the store of Reuter & Boyce, at the corner of Depot street.

It is remarkable that the run was made without any damage being done to the team or wagon, or to any other vehicle or pedestrians on the way.

WHY DON'T WE SELL AMERICAN MADE TOOTH BRUSHES? Because we don't know any such—genuine—the experiment has been tried but without success.

The best brush we can find is the CROWN TOOTH BRUSH—LONDON MADE. Why, we've sold them for twenty-five years and are still selling them—and what a success they've been! We like goods of that kind which you can sell year after year and hold your trade.

Then for a cheaper tooth brush, we've some excellent Japanese made brushes—clever people, those Japs!

Next comes a lot of French Tooth Brushes, all grades—right in price and quality as a rule.

THE TRACTION COMPANY ENJOINED.

A Temporary Injunction Against the Building of the Road on Harlem Avenue Granted by Judge Dykman—Hon. Luther R. Marsh, Attorney, [illegible] in the Proceedings—The Injunction Returnable Next Saturday.

On the application of Hon. Luther R. Marsh, attorney for Mrs. [illegible], Judge Dykman, at White Plains, Saturday, granted a temporary injunction restraining the Middletown-Goshen Traction Company from building its road in [illegible] Avenue. The matter is returnable at White Plains, Saturday next, June 23th.

The papers in the case are very voluminous. The right of the city authorities to grant a franchise is questioned on the ground that the plaintiff and other protestants against the proposed road, own the fee of the street; the contention is made that of the property on the street the consent of but $7,075 assessed valuation has been obtained, while property assessed at $66,465 is opposed to the road; the validity of the consent of E. D. Scott is questioned on the ground that part of his property, [illegible], has no Academy avenue frontage, and the consent of W. O. [illegible] on the ground that the proposed road will not pass in front of his property; the school house question, [illegible] are all gone into, and, incidentally, the validity of the organization of the company is assailed; the alleged bad faith of the railroad company in the matter of the opening of the proposed new street is gone into at length and it is charged that, regardless of the law and rights of property owners, it is proposed to build the road through the street at night.

The complaint of Mrs. [illegible] is supported by the affidavits of Messrs. Finn, Dill, Kayler, Bastian, and of Mrs. Bodine, Mrs. Prior and others.

The Traction Company has retained Mr. Vanamee as counsel and he will assist its attorney, Mr. E. W. Wiggins, in presenting the railroad's case when the matter comes up before Judge Dykman for argument, next Saturday.

A VALUABLE HORSE KILLED.

Mr. W. B. Royce's Team Runs Away and One of Them Breaks Her Leg—Knocked in the Head.

Mr. William B. Royce's fine team of bays ran away, yesterday, about noon, on [illegible] street, and while crossing the [illegible] one of them caught its hoof between the rail and the planking, and broke its leg off about midway between the fetlock and knee. It was killed to put it out of misery.

After taking the family to church [illegible]

[illegible] and were dashing up the road at high speed.

It was only a few rods to the [illegible]

[illegible] She was not hurt in any way.

The horse whose foot was caught in the planking was brought to such a sudden stop that both bones of its right hind leg were snapped short off and protruded through the flesh. The hoof was caught so tightly in the planking that it was necessary to use a crow-bar to release it.

Word of the accident was sent to Mr. Royce while he, as Superintendent of the First Presbyterian Church Sunday School, was in charge of the Children's Day exercises in the church. He remained until the service was over and then went to the scene of the accident, and as soon as he saw the nature of the injury bandaged the injured horse's eyes and had it knocked in the head.

Mr. Royce's team was a very handsome one and one of the best matched teams in all this section. They were perfectly matched in color, size and style. The dead animal was the mother of its mate.

A HORSE'S FATAL FALL.

Stumbles and Falls and While Struggling Breaks a Leg.

Yesterday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, as Mr. J. [illegible], the East Main street butcher, was driving on [illegible] avenue, near [illegible], his horse stumbled and fell.

Mr. [illegible] jumped from the wagon, but before he could reach the horse's head, the animal commenced to struggle and kick and in its efforts to regain its feet one of the hind legs was broken, and it was found necessary to shoot the animal. The horse was a valuable one.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

SUITABLY OBSERVED IN MANY OF MIDDLETOWN'S CHURCHES.

Interesting and Appropriate Exercises in the Congregational, Presbyterian, Methodist and First Baptist Churches—Attractive Programmes Well Rendered by Sunday School Children.

Yesterday was Children's Day, and it was observed with interesting and appropriate exercises in several of Middletown's churches.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

St. Paul's Church was crowded, yesterday morning, during the Children's Day exercises. An interesting programme was presented by the Sunday School, entitled "The church of the future." A structure was erected upon the pulpit platform, representing the front or facade of a church building, supported by six columns, each representing a prominent characteristic in the model structure.

The emblems of these characteristics were: [illegible]

[illegible]

A liberal supply of flowers added greatly to the occasion.

Previous to the exercises, Rev. Dr. [illegible] administered baptism to [illegible] children.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

The First Congregational Church was filled at both morning and evening services. The pulpit was very prettily trimmed with potted plants and wild flowers. The words "Children's Day" made of daisies were placed conspicuously in the background and over it hung a chain of the same flowers. At the morning service the singing was especially good; a solo by Miss Landon during the offertory was fine. Four children were baptized by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Robinson during the service.

The pastor's theme was: "The child in the house of God," and he chose as his text St. Luke ii:22. "They brought Him to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord." [illegible]

[illegible]

SECOND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

At the Second Presbyterian Church the children's services were held in the evening, and the attendance was large and the services of a very interesting character. The platform was decorated with cut flowers, [illegible] predominating.

"The Dike Builders" was the subject [illegible]

The following programme was rendered:

[illegible]

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

At the First Presbyterian Church the subject of the Children's Day exercises was: "[illegible]" [illegible]

There was first an organ voluntary, an invocation by the pastor, and then responsive readings, an address by Superintendent Royce, a recitation by [illegible], entitled "Coral Builders."

"The [illegible]" consisted of [illegible] the following young people: Nella Dusenberry, Nina Knight, Harry [illegible], Mertie Hulse, Clifford [illegible], Gussie [illegible], Morris Hulse, Lottie Evans, Harold [illegible], Willie Rogers and Bertha Rorty. The solo was sung by Bertha Dusenberry in a most admirable manner.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The First Baptist Church Sunday School observed Children's Day in a very interesting manner. [illegible]

A solo by Miss Grace Wood was well rendered.

A short address by the Superintendent, Mr. [illegible], pointed out the necessity of consecrated effort, the blessing following them in Sunday school work, "love and kindness work wonders."

Everyone's thoughts were happily in touch with children, and together with the music and flowers the exercises were full of blessings. Too high praise cannot be given the school as a whole for their united and consecrated efforts. The floral decorations were magnificent. The air seemed permeated with good tidings of great joy, and all present felt greatly repaid for their [illegible]. It is believed that service marks a new era in the life of the school.

THE NORTH STREET CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

At the North Street Congregational Church the services were held in the morning and were of a very interesting character. The decorations were elaborate and beautiful. The programme was an interesting one but was received too late for publication.

FELL FROM A WINDOW.

A [illegible] Child Falls [illegible] Feet [illegible]

[illegible] daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. [illegible], fell from the second story window of their home at the corner of East Main and [illegible] streets, [illegible]

This morning, however, all traces of the injuries had disappeared and when a reporter called at the house the little one was sitting on the floor playing with her blocks.

Injured by Falling from a Scaffold.

Mr. Oscar B. Jones, a carpenter, while at work on Prince street, this afternoon, fell from a scaffold, and sustained quite serious injuries, consisting of a scalp wound, which required several stitches, and also several bruises. The patrol wagon was called out and he was taken to Thrall Hospital.

Transferred to the [illegible] Asylum.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Parlin, attendants at the State Homeopathic Hospital, in this city, went to Rome, N. Y., this morning, with four patients, whose transfer to the New York Custodial Asylum [illegible], was ordered by the State Commission in Lunacy.

THE FIRST IDEALIST.

A jelly fish swam in a tropical sea,
And he said [illegible] it consists of me.
There's no fish [illegible] a nothing below
That I [illegible] to know
(Since we've got no sight or hearing or smell)
Beyond what our [illegible] can tell.
Now, [illegible] from the sense of touch
Is the fact of my feelings viewed as such.
But to think they have any external cause
Is an inference [illegible] logical laws.
Again, to suppose, as I've hitherto done,
There are other jelly fish under the sun
Is a pure assumption that can't be backed
By a jot of proof or a single fact,
In short, like Hume, I very much doubt
If there's anything else at all without.
So I come at last to the plain conclusion,
When the subject is fairly set free from confusion,
That the universe simply centers in me,
And if I were not then nothing would be."

That minute a shark, who was strolling by,
Just gulped him down in the twink of an eye,
And he died with a few convulsive twists.

But somehow the universe still exists.

—Boston Globe.

A Daring Trick.

"One of the most daring tricks I ever came across," said H. F. Farrell, a New York attorney, "was in the case of a man who deliberately impersonated a lawyer's clerk and persuaded a very sick man to sign a will without reading it, and which disposed of his property in direct opposition to his wishes. It was a case of a family dispute, and the old gentleman, who was quite wealthy, had decided to disinherit his eldest son and leave the property to a younger one. Being warned by his doctor that he had only a day or two more to live, he sent instructions to his attorney to draft his will and send it down promptly for signature.

"While the lawyer was preparing the document a representative of the eldest son arrived with a paper, which he said was the will prepared by the sick man's attorney. The will was signed without hesitation and duly witnessed, and when two hours later the lawyer's clerk arrived with the genuine will he was not allowed to enter the house, being warned off the premises by the housekeeper. On his return to the office his employer saw at once that a fraud had been committed, and he hastened to the house to have it set right. In the meantime, however, the sick man had become unconscious, and he died without being able to execute a will after his own wishes. The bogus will was upset, but the fraud could never be sufficiently proved to convict the man suspected of committing it, and he inherited quite a large sum of the money as next of kin."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Still Another Name

Life would be stupid in some of its aspects if the same thing were always called by the same name. Such is not the case, however, and perhaps it is better so. If there were no mysteries and surprises, the world would be less interesting.

Colonel Philip Lee was passing through South Carolina thirty odd years ago—it was in wartime—when he accosted an old negro with the question:

"I say, uncle, are there any Huguenots about here?"

The colored man looked surprised and answered the question by another:

"Well, I declare, where be you one from?"

"From way up in old Kentucky," said Colonel Lee.

"Well, I thought so. Why in Tennessee they call 'em peanuts, in Georgia they call 'em goobers, in Alabama they is pinders, here in South Carolina we call 'em ground peas, and now you fellows way off dere in Kentucky call 'em huguenuts. Well, I do declare!"—Youth's Companion.

Woman Was Made From an Elm Stick.

In the Scandinavian myth of the origin of woman, Odin, Vili and Ve, the three sons of Bor, were walking along the seabeach, when they found two sticks of wood, one of ash and one of elm. Odin and his brothers were gods, of course, but the sight of the sticks caused them to wish that they could carve other gods from the inanimate wood. They forthwith set about the task, with the result that they made a living man out of the ash stick, and a female, being in godlike form, equally as lively as the man, out of the elm billet. —St. Louis Republic.

Steamships Steered by a Finger.

Marvelous progress has been made in marine architecture and equipment within the past few years. There was a time when the wheelhouse of a big ocean steamer contained eight stalwart men, who, in rough weather, would find it almost a herculean task to manage the wheel. Nowadays the light touch of an infant's hand upon the wheel is of sufficient power to turn a vessel completely around. Huge boats are now steered by a steam apparatus, which is as quick and effective as the touch upon the ordinary electric button.—Philadelphia Record.

FREAKS OF NATURE.

Some Curious Things That Amuse and Astonish Men of Science.

Nature's freaks of fancy afford a strange study. People are constantly sending to the National museum supposed fossil animals and other oddities which are in reality mere accidental forms carved by water. A pebble in a stream gathers about itself grains of sand until an odd shaped lump is made. A favorite shape for such lumps is that of a turtle with four legs, a head and tail, even the lines of the shell being sometimes distinct. Similar concretions of carbonate of iron and clay assume the appearance of petrified peanuts. Break one, and you will always find inside a small spiral winkle shell, which has served as the nucleus. A queer counterfeit of this kind, forwarded to Washington not long ago, was an alleged fossil foot of a child, with a little stocking on, the latter showing signs of wear on the ball of the foot and on the heel. It was only a concretion, as was likewise what appeared to be a petrified oyster on the shell.

One eminent scientist has been amusing himself of late by making imitation spider webs out of quartz fibers. It is well known that copper wire can be drawn to a fineness much less than the thickness of a hair—in fact, to the diameter of the one-thousandth part of an inch. Platinum wires may be spun finer than copper, while even the finest spun glass is not so fine as silk fiber. The latter, however, is coarse compared with the threads that can be obtained by melting quartz under a blowpipe and pulling it out. Such threads may be reduced to a thinness of one millionth of an inch. Drawn to such tenuity, they are invisible under a microscope of the highest power. Yet they are stronger in proportion to their thickness than the best quality of bar steel. Enough thread like this could be made from a single cubic inch of quartz to go around the world 675 times. A grain of sand barely large enough to be visible to the naked eye would yield 1,000 miles of thread.

Obviously no practical use can be made of threads so extremely fine. Comparatively coarse ones were woven into cobwebs by the scientist aforesaid. They would not catch flies because they were too slippery, having no gluten on them, like real cobwebs. This difficulty was got over by moistening a straw in castor oil and gently stroking the threads with it; then the web captured flies fairly well. But a cobweb is incomplete without a spider, so it occurred to the experimenter to attract an arachnid to his web by the buzzing of a fly. It was difficult to make a fly buzz to order, but a satisfactory imitation was produced by persuading a tuning fork to vibrate against the quartz fibers. This fetched the spider right away. The scientist also amused himself with blowing bubbles of quartz, which looked exactly like the most beautiful soap bubbles.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr Samuel Pitcher That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

GETTING A MOVE.

He Decided That He Would Gaze From a Foreign Shore.

"You will excuse me," he said to a policeman at the foot of Woodward avenue, "but is this the Detroit river?"

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"And is that Canada over there?"

"Yes, sir."

"Foreign shore, isn't it?"

"I believe it is."

"Yes, foreign shore. Strange, isn't it, how one can stand in the United States and look upon a foreign shore? Do you feel the sentiment of it?"

"I can't say that I ever felt any particular sentiment, sir."

"No? When you look across to that foreign shore, your heart does not beat the faster?"

"No, sir."

"Nor does it swell with pride?"

"No, sir."

"And the tears do not spring to your eyes as you realize how our forefathers bled and died that we might call this the land of the free?"

"No, sir."

"Then you are neither a patriot nor an American. Why, sir, when I stand here and gaze"——

"Move on!" commanded the officer.

"What for?"

"Because you are tight and disturbing the peace."

"And I can't stand here and gaze on a foreign shore?"

"No, sir."

"Very well, sir, very well! I will take the boat and cross the river, and from a foreign shore I will gaze upon my own dear native land—yes, sir, gaze for a week if I want to and be hanged to you, sir, be hanged to you!"

And he clawed his way aboard with shaking knees and tearful eyes and sat down to fall asleep before the boat was half way over.—Detroit Free Press.

The Essential Points.

"What were the particulars of the accident?" inquired the reporter.

"The cable car was going at a high rate of speed," replied the little man who had rushed breathlessly into the city editor's room for the purpose of giving The Daily Bread an item of news. "Just as it turned the corner a man in a light open buggy tried to drive across the track. The grip car struck the buggy squarely, knocked the man out, and he fell senseless on the pavement. A policeman arrested the gripman, and the injured man was carried into Van Plunk's drug store, right on the corner. Ever been in that drug store? Elegantly fitted up, open nearly all night, largest soda fountain in that part of town, and"——

"What was the extent of the man's injuries?"

"He was hurt on the head, I think, but I didn't wait to see how badly. I jumped on another car and came right down to give you the story. In writing it up you can say"——

"What was his name?"

"I didn't ascertain."

"Who was the gripman?"

"I didn't inquire."

"Do you know the name or number of the policeman?"

"No."

"Then how do you suppose I can write the thing up if you don't give me any names?"

"Great Scott! Haven't I told you he was carried into Van Plunk's drug store? What more do you want?"

"Yes, but"——

"Anybody in that part of town can tell you who Van Plunk is and what kind of"——

"May I ask your name?"

"Yes, sir. My name is Van Plunk."—Chicago Tribune.

What He Could Not Forgive.

Mr Robert Louis Stevenson does not like the portraits of him which are given to the world, and no wonder! "The pictures they publish of me," he complained, "vary considerably. They represent every type from the most godlike creatures to the criminal classes, and their descriptions of me vary in proportion—from a man with a 'noble bearing' to a 'blighted boy.' I don't mind what they say as a general rule, only I object when somewhere in the States an interviewer wrote, 'A tall, willowy column supported his classic head, from which proceeded a hacking cough.' I could not forgive that."—Exchange.

Didn't Sell It.

A disappointed fish hawker was belaboring his slow but patient horse in a street one day and calling out his wares at intervals as.

"Herrin, herrin, fresh herrin!"

A tender hearted lady, seeing the act of cruelty to the horse, called out sternly from an upper window

"Have you no mercy?"

"No, mum," was the reply. "Nothin but herrin."—Boston Home Journal

PROF. NIEL,

government chemist, writes: I have carefully analyzed your "Royal Ruby Port Wine," bought by me in the open market, and certify that I found the same absolutely pure and well aged. This wine is especially recommended for its health-restoring and building up properties; it strengthens the weak and restores lost vitality; particularly adapted for convalescents, the aged, nursing mothers and those reduced and weakened by over-work and worry. Be sure you get "Royal Ruby"; $1 per quart bottles, pints 60 cts. Sold by

PUBLIC VOICE.

The Electric Road on Benton Avenue from a Benton Avenue Point of View—Wholesale Denunciation of the Traction Company.

EDITORS ARGUS:—

"The quarrel is a very pretty quarrel as it stands."—SHERIDAN.

"We," for I have as much right to use the imperial "we," as any single ARGUS editor,—there are as many of me as there is of him—"we" have wondered which of the "we's" of the ARGUS could have written the editorial, apparently, in its issue of Saturday, assailing the noble and true letter of Dr. Fancher, and foully attacking the residents of Benton avenue, and which was composed of ignorance, of assurance, of malignity, of selfishness, and of perversion, in such balanced proportions, that it is impossible to tell which of the these amiable qualities predominate.

"We" felt sure it could not have proceeded from the graceful and generous pen of the senior editor, for that pen is a stranger to such meanness, sulkiness, and misrepresentations. Besides, his residence is in a place of safety from the deadly trolleyism, and therefore he would not say "I am secure; no whizzing monster can run under my windows and annoy my family; what care I for others." That is not his makeup.

Nor, thought "we," could the infamy of the article be laid at the door of the next senior editor; for that door is perched upon an elevated knoll, where it can not be reached by trolleyism, nor by electrolysis, (electrolleysis)—a disease which attacks and honeycombs the underground water mains and gas pipes, wherever the elec-trolley-system exists; and this editor, "we" are confident, would not look down from his eyrie upon the lowlanders, and say: "No matter how much you suffer down there from the trolley; you should have located on higher ground."

In seeking further for the author, we think we glimpse him in a trolley road employe, but perhaps it might require a search warrant to find where the house he owns is. What tax do the books show you pay, Mr. Author?

We are glad of the article, because it confirms what we thought—that the venom of the trolleyites is poisonous, and it lets out quite a stream of it against those who are not willing to surrender their own property, and the comfort of their homes and families, that the nickels might pour into the pockets of these non-resident corporation invaders, and those who hope to gain something from their success and operations.

The author says he is not in the confidence of the trolley man, and yet he says he "knows" what they will do and what they will not do. This will not do, Mr. Author, for if you are acquainted with their secret intents, then you must be in the confidence of the trolley man. We recognize you as a blatant advocate of the trolley, and know it is not likely the agents would conceal their desires and designs from you.

These trolleyites have no regard for the city of Middletown nor its repose, nor for the comfort of our citizens. All they care for is to get control of our streets for a century, and then when fully confirmed, look out, Oh! citizens, to be ruled over by a tyrant. They come here from abroad; organize in form, distribute to some citizens a single share, each, (how generous) insomuch that 23 shares of the one thousand,—and only twenty-three,—are owned in Middletown, and the 977, abroad.

Did it ever occur to your "ghost" or spirit—if you have any,—that there might be a strong probability that the charter of your beloved company was assailable? You may not, but others know, that the courts look to the reality of transactions and that shams to conform to the forms of laws are disregarded. They look through the veil to the falsity within. How long, think you, would your corporation stand if subjected to the test and scrutiny of a severe judicial investigation? We would not be willing to undertake such a crusade, but shall not shirk it if the company carries on the war in the spirit of your article. Verbum sat sapienti.

You ought not to vent such animosity and ridicule on the poor "ghosts." You may, one of these days, be a ghost yourself; that is, if your soul has size and vitality enough to survive the disintegration of your body,—which seems doubtful. Perhaps the consciousness of this—that you have not soul enough to make a ghost of—is the cause of your malice toward that respectable body of ethereal beings; who enroll [illegible] excellent and eminent names. But the bare probability that, after all, your spirit may be able to form a ghost should make you more respectful to them, now.

[illegible] you are so wise! You know the views of "the people of Middletown." How did you collect the information? Have you seen them all on the subject? Why do you talk such nonsense?

Then you say that "ninety-nine out of every 100 Middletowners" have [illegible] their "sympathy"—yes, [illegible] the word,—from the residents of Benton avenue, because they [illegible] want the trolley in their street. [illegible] hardly expected that you would [illegible] that the residents were entitled to sympathy for this intended invasion of the trolley. I suppose you fixed on the proportion of "ninety-nine" because the trolley company wanted the avenue to be surrendered to them as other streets have been, for "ninety-nine" years.

So you think "the people of Middletown"—you among them,—"laugh" at the dangers to the 385 children, scholars at the school where the trolley would run across the frontage of the school ground, some 200 feet, and then turn a sharp corner and run along the school grounds for 167 feet more. These streets are the playground of the children.

You are interested, and must see the papers from all parts. Have you noticed the great numbers of children killed or maimed by trolley cars wherever they run? You must have seen last Monday's New York Herald, for instance, where the crushing of a young lady, while she was trying to snatch a ten-year-old girl from the juggernaut wheels, was said to be the twenty-seventh case of killing in Newark by trolleys; and it was said that if a statement was made of all the injuries in that city by these cars, of wounding people, killing or hurting horses, and breaking carriages, etc., it would fill an entire page of the Herald.

Are you aware that in Brooklyn there have been killed by the trolley cars sixty-eight people, and that the number of those who have been maimed and wounded by them is 497?

And yet you laugh. Isn't it rather a slander on the people of Middletown when you say that they laugh, too? Look at yesterday's New York Recorder and see how little John Spring was cut in twain by a trolley car in Jersey City, and how Thomas Loha, a passenger, had his legs crushed between two trolley platforms, and give us a loud guffaw.

If you knew that you were stating a falsehood when you said Mr. Finn claims title to Benton avenue, then it is of a piece of the rest of your piece; if you did not know it, then it is an invention of yours, characterized by utter disregard of the truth. The remonstrants on Benton avenue own, each of of them, the fee of the street to the centre thereof, ad medium filum viæ. Have you any objections? And do you think it wrong in them to desire to protect their own properties and families?

You know of course that the trolleyites have various other available routes, they can pursue, to get to the same point; for one of which, they agreed to pay something, and now back out. "We" know, if you do not, that the company is very sparing of its money,—the city don't see the color,—but they want a road bed provided for them free of charge, free of expense, through a street of residences, which is already graded, paved, curbed and sidewalked, and adorned with shade trees, and which the proprietors have, themselves, heretofore paid for. It's nice, isn't it, to appropriate somebody else's property?

Your company have asked for this new short-cut street; and promised to pay a certain portion of the expense. They should now come up, like men, and voluntarily offer to pay, say $2,000, as their proportion of the assessment. Proceedings were taken for its opening by the city at their request. These proceedings have gone beyond the jurisdiction and control of the city. They cannot be abandoned, save at an expense of between three and four thousand dollars, as has just been illustrated in Newburgh, and for which nothing would be received. It would be just throwing away from three to four thousand dollars and no return. This will not be done. There is only one obstructionist, and he, harangue as he may, cannot arrest this new street,—a great improvement and convenience to the citizens of Middletown. But now the trolleyites desire to leave the city in the scrape they have pushed it into, and to shunt off upon a road bed which will cost them nothing, through Benton avenue; to have and to hold the same to themselves and their successors, for the full end and term of ninety-nine years.

And you, whoever you are, are aiding them; stopping not for brake and staying not for stone and hesitating not at any falsehood if you can but commend yourself to your masters.

Come! Disclose the personality of your "we," and I will that of my

"WE."

A Mother's Protest Against the Electric Road in Front of the Benton Avenue School House.

EDITORS ARGUS:—I am only a mother with an irrepressible little boy, but for that reason, and that alone, I would wish to enter a protest against the electric road rounding the corner of the Benton avenue school house. I have no possible interest in the rest of the street. It has never struck me as a particularly interesting one, but from out of the school house, half a dozen times a day, rushes my small boy,—plenty of other boys also and little girls,—but I am selfishly thinking of my own. I don't believe for a moment that the employes of the road will be at fault when an accident overtakes some of the children. No, the company will, for its own interest, take every precaution. It will be owing to the child's impetuosity, his thoughtlessness and recklessness. He'll rush for a ball, he'll plunge across the street after a companion, he'll roll in the dust or jump in the mud; being a boy he is bound to do these things. How can Middletown be so careless of her children as to greatly increase their chances of accident by allowing electric cars, everywhere dangerous enough, to go through both the streets this school house is situated upon?

Are there no other corners near enough? Does not Middletown depend more upon her little children for future greatness than upon a trolley road in a particular spot?

The offer the company makes to halt at the corner shows that it recognizes danger. Would not enough time be consumed by the stop to carry the cars a block further? And what good would the stop do? What little boy is ever conscious of any thing but his freedom, when let out of school, or cares for risks when excited over some childish sport?

Not till there is no other corner to turn, nor another street for a car to go on, would a wise city permit tracks to be laid on all the street frontage of a school house for little children. On the consciences of the authorities of Middletown and on the hearts of sorrowing mothers will the consequences rest.

ONE OF THE MOTHERS.

WOMAN'S HEROISM.

FEW PEOPLE REALIZE IT.

What Heroic Efforts They make to Appear Cheerful and Happy.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

How many, think you, have any idea of the suffering endured by so large a proportion of the women of America?

Very few men have the slightest conception of the pain endured by so many women, even those of their own households, or the heroic efforts they make to appear cheerful and happy.

Maid of Orleans.

Women ought to be told just where the danger lies, for their whole future may depend upon their knowledge, and how to overcome it.

Lydia E. Pinkham solved the mystery after years of experience and study. She unerringly traced the cause of nearly all of woman's suffering to the womb.

Other years followed and her Vegetable Compound was given to the world.

And now, after years of marvellous success, it is acknowledged the unfailing remedy for all forms of female complaints, ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, irregularity, suppressed or painful menstruations, leucorrhœa, bloating, flooding, backache, nervous prostration, kidney trouble, etc., and is found on the shelves of all respectable druggists.

Such cases as this of Mrs. M. F. Fozzy, of Campello, Mass., speak volumes. She says: "I was very sick. I did not ever expect to get up again. Menstruations had stopped suddenly. The pains all through my body were terrible. As a last resort I sent for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a box of her Liver Pills. I also used a package of her Sanative Wash.

"Relief came at once, and to-day I am a well woman. Menstruations regular, no backache, entirely cured of leucorrhœa and bearing down pains. Nothing equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Ladies Who Bloat.

What a great number there are, how uncomfortable it makes them; it is almost impossible for these afflicted to enjoy life. In my private practice I have always found Sulphur Bitters to be the best remedy. All who are thus troubled should use it. MRS DR CHILDS, Boston.

Facts Worth Knowing

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuff, powders or astringents, because they are irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who had for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm. Your druggist has it.

I feel truly grateful to you, and cheerfully recommend your treatment.
